

OMNICORP ANNOUNCES NEW WEBSITE, PRODUCT LAUNCHES, CAREERS

(Ankarta, Turkey) - After several years of operating independently, a conglomeration of fractional technology, biology, medical, and human enhancement companies are uniting under a new parental entity, OMNICORP.

OMNICORP intends to be the leading technology and biological sciences company, in the world, challenging conventions of human and technological limits. The branding initiative begins with the launch of the corporate website, omnicorp.one.

In addition to the launch of the new website, OMNICORP is also pleased to announce plans for several new product launches in the coming months. Their team of experts is constantly working on innovative solutions that push the boundaries of technology and science, and are excited to share these developments with investors, customers and partners.

OMNICORP is now hiring for a range of new career opportunities. From research and development to sales and marketing, OMNICORP is looking for talented individuals to join the team and help drive the future of technology and biological sciences. Interested candidates can find job postings and apply on the new website, omnicorp.one.

OMNICORP invites everyone to explore their new website and learn more about the exciting things happening at OMNICORP.

About OMNICORP:

OMNICORP is a leading technology and biological sciences company dedicated to advancing the quest to transcend human limitations through innovative research and development.